

Duquesne University

Duquesne Scholarship Collection

Hallowed Secularism

The Collective Works of Bruce Ledewitz, Adrian
Van Kaam C.S.Sp. Endowed Chair in Scholarly
Excellence and Professor of Law

3-9-2021

March 9, 2021: The Future of Mail-in Voting in Pennsylvania--the week's column

Bruce Ledewitz

Duquesne University, ledewitz@duq.edu

Follow this and additional works at: <https://dsc.duq.edu/ledewitz-hallowedsecularism>

Part of the Constitutional Law Commons, and the Law and Philosophy Commons

Repository Citation

Ledewitz, B. (2021). March 9, 2021: The Future of Mail-in Voting in Pennsylvania--the week's column.
Retrieved from <https://dsc.duq.edu/ledewitz-hallowedsecularism/1359>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the The Collective Works of Bruce Ledewitz, Adrian Van Kaam C.S.Sp. Endowed Chair in Scholarly Excellence and Professor of Law at Duquesne Scholarship Collection. It has been accepted for inclusion in Hallowed Secularism by an authorized administrator of Duquesne Scholarship Collection. For more information, please contact beharyr@duq.edu.

Title: The Future of Mail-in Voting in Pennsylvania--the week's column

Date: 2021-03-09T06:58:00.002-05:00

3/9/2021--Republicans really misunderstood the lawsuit challenging mail-in voting after the 2020 election. They supported it, but the conservative Justices on the USSCt would have had to oppose it under the independent state legislature doctrine. It's an unhistorical doctrine to be adopted by originalists, but we appear stuck with it. So, what is the future of mail-in voting in Pennsylvania--this week's column in the Pennsylvania Capital-Star.